

Boston, May 3, 1846.

My dear Mr Kim:

As you are republishing my essays on "The Constitution and Political Action," I hasten to inform you of a blunder in the last (3rd) number, which occurred during my absence from the city, in the "making up."

At the close of the third paragraph, ending thus — "fear not to walk in the path of obedience" — delete the next paragraph, commencing, "In proof of the soundness of these views," and ending, "Supreme Court of the United States," and put it between the paragraph, ending "if need be, by the national arm," and the next paragraph, commencing, "Such, then, being the nature of the American Union," &c.

I regret that this blunder should have occurred in the Liberator, and am somewhat apprehensive this letter will arrive too late to have the article printed correctly in the Freeman. If this should be the case, please make the correction in your inside form.

Do try to induce as many of our Philadelphia friends to be at the annual meeting as possible, at New-York. I am afraid our meeting will be smaller than usual, and I feel very anxious that our best heads and hearts should be present. I hope it will be possible for James and Lucretia Mott to be present. My best regards to them, your wife, and all the beloved circle. Yours, truly, W. L. Garrison.
